Miss Jean Barker (above), president of the Junior League of Louisville, had returned Wednesday from New York, where she participated in a ten-day convention of the Oxford Groups at Briarcliff Manor.

Testifying to the spiritual benefits she had derived from her fellowship, Miss Barker said:

"I realize now how self-centered and useless an existence I led before becoming acquainted with the group and its message. The new life is a hard one, but I realize that previous to joining the movement, I had not been living at all."

Dr. Frank N. D. Buchman, founder and head of the group, was present at the convention, which opened with a mass meeting in the Waldorf Astoria Hotel last Tuesday.

A team of thirty Oxford members of the movement which has been touring this country and Canada is expected in Louisville next week, it was stated by local leaders.
